WHEN WE WERE TWENTY-ONE.

The theater-going public of this city have a genuine treat in store in the new play called "When We Were Twentyone." This play tells a story so pure and so true to human life and the tragic moments that come to the life of so many that it goes straight home to every heart. There is no rant, no effort made to draw sympathy by any known stage trick, for it speaks direct to the heart. Though dealing with one of the most dramatic phases of human life, it is heightened with the light and shade of human experience. The author has given a true and delightful play to the ative, Prof. E. Swift; negative, Prof E. world. At the Washington Opera-house Saturday, February 14th. Seats go on sale Friday morning.

Dr. McNew, Editor of The Carlisle Democrat, who also edits the Nicholas County Judgeship, is far and away one of the rip-roaringist Goebelites in Kentucky; and yet he can see through a millstone when there's a hole in it. In a recent editorial entitled "A Travesty on Justice," the Doctor used this vigorous language-

"The Kentucky law regulating the selection of Juries for the trial of cases in the Circuit Court is in many respects a fraud and a travesty upon justice. This law empowers the Circuit Court Judge to take the box containing names selected by the Jury Commissioners who are selected by him into a room where no one can witness his doubtful methods, and take out thirty names to be used at the next term of Court.

"If this Judge 'happens' to have a bias or prejudice and is a real rascal or trickster of the filthy kind-and some of them are-he in his selection can so manipulate the drawing of the names to be used so as to virtually pack' the Jury with individuals whose minds are already made up on certain social, political and religious questions, and thereby convict an innocent man he doesn't like, who by the reason of infamous methods of this same class of rascals, has been brought before this same trickster Judge for trial. Anyone with no more sense than a goose can readily see and understand how, with these surroundings and manipulated by the right kind of political tricksters and unmitigated scoundrel posing as a Circuit Judge, that justice under the law and its intentions can be thwarted and driven from the Courts of our state forever. This law should be so changed as to have these Jury drawings made in public or before the officers of

Find Robert Fulton. Robert Fulton did not build the first steamboat, but he did first demon-trate the practicability of steam navigation. John Fitch, among others, had built some three or four boats before Fulton began his, and it was undoubtedly from Fitch's drawings, for several months in the hands of Fulton, that the Katherine of Clermont was constructed after the death of the Lewis county delegation. Fitch. The first voyage of the Katherine of Clermont was made in the summer of 1807, the boat leaving the wharf at New York on August 11 of that year and completing the trip to Albany 32 hours later. During the remainder of that season the boat continued to run as a packet between New York and Albany. Previous to this success Fulton had constructed a steamboat in France, and before and after the voyage of the Clermont patented a number of maritime inventions, among which was an unsuccessful submarine boat. He died in New York February 24, 1815, at the

The home of Mrs. S. E. Foxworthy was the scene of a brilliant affair last Thursday evening, when her daughter, Miss Sarah Margaret, was united in marriage with Mr. Henry Bascom Norwood. Promptly at 8 o'clock the bridal party, preceded by the Minister, Rev. Gardner, and Messrs. Maltby and Clifton Foxworthy, brothers of the bride, entered the parlor to the sweet strains of Lohengrin, skillfully executed on the violin by Miss Mary Norwood Turner and Miss Jessie Glascock on the piano. The bride was handsomely gowned in white silk waist, with silk applique trimmings, and black silk skirt, while the groom in conventional black never looked manlier, nor the bride more charming than when each plighted their troth to the other. The ceremony was even more beautiful and sacred by the impressive tones so characteristic of the Minister. After the ceremony the bride and groom repaired to the dining-room, where an elegant repast was served to eighty guests. It may seem like idle talk to say much about place an order. But in having your clothes made to measure—"and they really are the only kind that fit and last"-two facts should be considered. One is, that he who takes time by the forelock never gets left; so he who takes advantage of opportunities when presented and selects his goods and places his order for whatsoever he may need in wearing apparel before the season fairly opens is never left. For why? As usual, the good things go first, and he who gets there first is like the proverbial bird-gets the best that's going. The second fact to be considered is, tailors, when the spring is here, are very busy, and in consequence late orders are delayed, which causes anneyances otherwise avoided. Come and look at my line.
